

AMERICAN BAe 146-200A

American Airlines currently operates a small fleet of six (694-699) (occasionally others are leased) of the British Aerospace jet, in the Reno-San Francisco/San Jose-Burbank/Los Angeles/Orange County, California corridor. The fleet was acquired on July 1, 1987 with the merger of AirCal. The pictured N697AA (formerly N145AC) sports the full American color scheme (note the gray painted fuselage). It was built in 1986, seats 85 in coach class configuration and is powered by four AVCO Lycoming ALF502R-5 fan turbine engines. (5/89)
